

W. P. WALTON.

For Congress.

HON. G. G. GILBERT

Of Shelby County.

THE fine Italian hand of Gov. Bradley is directing events in his party again and to him is due almost entirely the credit of side tracking that miserable counterfeit of a man, the fugitive from justice, on a charge of assassination. The ex-governor had been heard to express his opinion of a coward who runs away to escape the consequences of a crime and to say that unless Taylor returned to Kentucky and faced the music, he would not touch him with a 40-foot pole. This is doubtless what he told Gen. Collier to tell him when he sent him to Indianapolis to deliver the ultimatum, and is what brought the assassination suspect to time. Taylor wanted to run for governor and stay in Indiana, having his friends to make the plea of persecution for him, but Gov. Bradley would have none of it and when Taylor saw that it was no use to argue with a man who held all the leading cards in the deck, he reluctantly consented to write the address declining to be a candidate for governor. He didn't want to trust himself out of the protection of Mount, with the Franklin jail yearning for him, though he could have made a much better race in jail in Kentucky than as a fugitive in Indiana. Kentuckians despise cowardice, but are quick to resent a persecution, which might have been played for all it was worth, with Taylor behind the bars. But he is out of the question now. Bradley, with Yerkes a candidate and sure of nomination, has things exactly where he wants them. He hopes to relieve his party of the weight it has to carry and by playing for civil liberty like he did for a look at the democratic books in 1895, hopes to keep in the saddle, but he is reckoning this time in vain. The people of Kentucky are tired of republican rule and will put the seal of their condemnation upon it, the more certainly since that rule was attempted to be perpetuated by assassination.

We are indeed glad that Mr. Jao. W. Yerkes has at last announced for something. For the last 10 years he has been "mentioned" every time an office was to be filled from constable to governor, always being heralded as the strongest man in his party and a sprinter from away back. We shall see now what we shall see, which will doubtless be that the Danville man is not such a runner after all, even though he be smooth of limb, well fed and well groomed. Mr. Yerkes is a pleasant, clever gentleman to meet up with, is well versed in the requirements of decent society, knows how to wear a spade tall coat properly and is outwardly a well appearing man. Those who know him best, however, say there is not a meaner republican in the business nor a more purblind partisan. In politics it is safe to assume that he is better than his party but endorses the acts of its leaders no matter to what lengths they may go. That he is a sympathizer with Taylor is shown in the fact that he had the assassination suspect to come to his home and be his guest, even after he was charged with being an accessory before the fact of the meanest crime known to its annals. Mr. Yerkes will have to carry the weight and the odium of his party's attempt at government by assassination and we opine that he will be so heavily handicapped he will make but a poor showing in the race, no matter how much he and his henchmen may prate about civil liberty and other inventions to catch the unwary. Dog Tray got it by keeping bad company and before the eyes of November Mr. Yerkes will know how it is himself. Personally we like the handsome and smooth mannered Danvillian, but we hope to be able to help him before he is many months older that he answered the call too quickly and that he ought to have let a less accomplished republican carry the load of infamy that will break his back and send him to inglorious defeat.

GOV. MCCREARY is sure to be one of the delegates at large to the Kansas City convention. He leads largely in the instructed vote Saturday, so far as reported. The honor could not be more worthily bestowed nor could a truer or more faithful democrat be rewarded. Gov. McCreary has never faltered in his allegiance to the democratic party and he is held in the highest esteem by Mr. Bryan, with whom he served in Congress, and who knows his worth as a man and a statesman. The other three delegates will likely be Senator Blackburn, Lewis McQuown and possibly Senator Poyntz.

In his card declining what it was never intended by the leaders that he should have, Taylor says: "How much I have suffered for freedom's sake few will ever know." And how it feels to be hanged for his many crimes and misdemeanors, it won't be permitted him to tell.

So far as heard from, there is no other aspirant for National committee-man except the incumbent, Editor Grey Woodson, of the Owensboro Messenger, who has made an admirable one and eminently deserves a further recognition.

THE Shelby Sentinel celebrated its 7th birthday last week. Charley Lewis was not present at the birth, but none of those who have fathered it has made a better paper than he is doing.

THE Hon. D. G. Colson seems to have as many lives as a Thomas cat. Bullets nor other death dealing contrivances seem to have no effect on him and he miraculously comes out of runaways and other accidents unscathed. While driving at Middlesboro Saturday his horse took fright and became unmanageable. After running about half a mile the buggy struck a telegraph pole and was turned over. Strange to relate, Mr. Colson didn't receive a scratch.

THE pot is boiling all over the State. Brown men have seen the error of their way and are returning to their first love. Four of them were put on the Mercer county delegation Saturday to the Louisville convention.

AN effort was made to keep Mercer county from sending a McCreary delegation to Louisville, but it failed most ingloriously. The anti-McCreary delegates didn't get enough votes to count.

POLITICIANS AND POLITICS.

Colorado democrats instructed for Bryan.

Boyle county sent an uninstructed delegation of good democrats. Shelby democrats instructed for Editor Charles M. Lewis for district delegate.

J. R. Keene, the New York sporting man, has bet $25,000 on Bryan's election.

The National committee of the gold democratic party has been called to meet at Indianapolis July 25.

The republicans are making much ado over carrying Oregon, which they claim is an endorsement of McKinley's administration.

Knox county endorsed James D. Black and scored the republican assassins. J. C. Jones was instructed for district delegate.

Mercer county did not instruct her delegates. Strong resolutions against Taylor and his crowd and Mount for harboring them were adopted.

The recommendation of Capt. Calhoun that the Taylor militia be paid for services will not be carried out by Gov. Beckham, and ought not to be.

The Connecticut democratic convention at Waterbury endorsed W. J. Bryan for president and pledged support to the platform to be adopted in Kansas City.

Democrats in Wayne and Russell counties instructed for Blackburn, McCreary, McQuown and Poyntz for delegates at large, and for W. R. Cress for delegate from the 11th district.

Laurel endorsed James D. Black for governor, and instructed for McCreary, Grey Woodson, Louis McQuown and Black for delegates at large and D. R. Hammock for district delegate.

Twenty-four States have so far held democratic conventions, and Bryan has instructions from 22. He lacks only 30 votes of a majority in the National convention, and but 184 of the two thirds necessary to a nomination.

Speaking of "confessions," Taylor's flight from justice and refusal to run for the office of governor are actions that speak louder than the words of Culton, Golden and other squealing conspirators.—Louisville Times.

Anderson, Spencer and Jessamine sent uninstructed delegations: Rockcastle instructed for McCreary, Blackburn, McQuown and Geo. T. Farris for delegates at large and Harvey Helm and Willard Mitchell for district delegates.

The Washington Times says: We note with pleasure that even Kentucky republicans are beginning to sicken of the contemptible creature, Taylor, whose only friends now are the party machineists, who are shielding him from justice in Indiana. Bye and bye, we predict that even Gov. Mount will realize what a dangerous object lesson of republican contempt for law he is affording, and turn the cowardly fugitive over to the Kentucky police.
